Prudential California Realty Rewards Outstanding San Francisco Teachers

Sales Agents and Employees Grant 75 Northern California Teachers $42,529

PLEASANTON, Calif. – June 2, 2009 – The Prudential California Realty Education Foundation honored 75 Northern California public school teachers for their outstanding achievements by awarding $42,529 in grants during May. Families, peers, community leaders and Prudential California agents honored the teachers at the annual event held in San Mateo on May 29.

Founded in 1992 and inspired by David Cobo, Prudential California Realty's chairman of the board and a former educator himself, the Education Foundation has awarded more than $700,000 in grants to 1,228 exceptional elementary, middle and high school teachers since its inception.

"The grantees are teachers who made an exceptional contribution to their students during the past year," said Cobo. "This is our opportunity to acknowledge their effort with grants that will help them continue their good work," he added.

David Cobo, Chairman and Ed Krafchow, president and CEO of Prudential California Realty, founded the Education Foundation, which is committed to the process of seeking out worthy candidates as grant recipients. Defined standards facilitate the selection process. Each year, grants are awarded to teachers who have been selected through an intense selection process by peers, principals, students, parents and other teachers.

This year, each teacher received nearly $600 which they can use however they like. The Education Foundation grants do not come from corporate funds, but directly from the personal donations of the agents, owners, managers and staff as a way of acknowledging and thanking teachers in their communities.

Grantees for 2009 included teachers in the following counties: Alameda, Contra Costa, Placer, Sacramento, San Francisco, San Joaquin, San Mateo, Solano and Sonoma.
